September 2026

Brought to you by Anacortes Music Project

SOMMER CARTER
AMP BOARD MEMBER

September 2026:

I am honored to be serving as an AMP board member. AMP has been a beautiful, wild ride over the last ten years. We started by putting on three festivals a year; lending out instruments we stored under our beds and in our home closets; publishing Show Chime every month; during Covid, Peddling live music on corners around Anacortes.

Today, so many of the dreams and ideas we were incubating have come to fruition. I mean, we had a million ideas! And now, with the insight and inspiration of so many more dreamers, AMP is a reflection of artists and musicians who make up the music community in our sweet neck of the woods. This is a beautiful mess, it is a wild accomplishment. In every case, this team of folks — our board, our vast gang of volunteers, our instructors and staff — comes together over the shared vision of belonging to a creative space where everyone is welcome, new ideas hatched, friendships made.

This month starts our winter session of Community Choir. Hardly is there a more potent equivalent to joy-making than participating in a room full of singers. Find joy where you can! Find it at AMP's Community Choir!

Here's to the love and tending required to hold up a dream. It is a deep and wide endeavor.

Meet the Band:

Trash Panda Go Kart

by Ricky Vance

Trash Panda Go Kart, with Zinnia Su on drums and vocals and Selena Kane on guitar and vocals, roll into AMPFest on September 5th with the kind of joyful, scrappy chaos that feels right at home in Anacortes. Their songs carry that punk-twee, raccoon-myth energy — loud, sweet, a little feral — the kind of music that makes you grin before you even realize you're dancing.

They're a band built on sincerity and mischief in equal measure, the sort of group that reminds you how fun it is when artists fully commit to their own weird little universe. They fit perfectly with the AMP spirit: handmade, community-rooted, and welcoming to anyone who shows up curious.

Expect a set that's bright, messy, and full of heart. Bring your friends. Bring your enthusiasm. Bring your offerings for the raccoon gods.

RV: Let's start with the obvious: you're bringing your raccoon-powered chaos to AMPFest on September 5th. What does playing a community-built festival like this mean to you?

TPGK: We LOVE community-based festivals! From the various Porchfests to the various Prides, there's always a great feeling in the air that people are doing this TOGETHER. Which is something we aim for through our music with ANY audience — togetherness, rather than a strict audience/performer vibe — so it's a lot easier to get everyone there when that's already the feeling!

RV: Trash Panda Go Kart has a mythology all its own — raccoon gods, misfit-toy energy, eco-mix vinyl. When did you first realize that "raccoon" was the creative wavelength you wanted to live on?

TPGK: We love all sorts of critters — we're an animist band, so they're all people to us — and have always enjoyed the raccoons, skunks, cats, possums, deer, foxes, owls, bats, that hang out around our various living situations. Raccoons are the ultimate outsider: slipping through the crepuscule, mask firmly in place, observing the human doings with interest, caution, and confusion, from what is hopefully a safe distance. Someone in a mask might tell you the truth, after all.

RV: Your live shows feel like a cross between a punk set and a woodland ritual. What's one moment from the stage that made you think, "Yep, this band could only exist in the Pacific Northwest"?

TPGK: Honestly those moments are a regular occurrence... From the fire-breathing metal dragon that passed by our stage-lawn the second year we played Tacoma Porchfest, to our first two years at Porchfest Edmonds with a perfect view of the Salish Sea and the Olympics AND the ferry terminal AND at least one volcano, to the alpacas watching with interest from their enclosure behind the stage at a farm-to-table dinner we entertained this year.

RV: AMPFest is all about community — volunteers, neighbors, artists, families, everyone. What's one thing you hope people feel during your set?

TPGK: BELONGING

RV: You've played everything from Tractor Tavern to Mr. B's Mead Center. How does a waterfront park in Anacortes change the vibe for you?

TPGK: We LOVE playing by the water — we're both water signs, and we live near the water. One of our songs is for the whales (we call it a yacht-sinking song) and we like thinking they maybe can hear it. Things are always better when there's water nearby.

RV: If you had to describe Trash Panda Go Kart to someone who has never seen you — but who will be at AMPFest — what's the one sentence you'd want them to hear?

TPGK: "Trash Panda Go Kart — Your friendly purveyors of power-twee lesbian raccoon rock."

RV: Your songs swing between playful, tender, loud, and feral. What's a track that feels especially alive to you right now, and why?

TPGK: Our song "La La Meow" always feels vibrant. People light up when they hear the lyrics & melody. The studio track is on our Raccoon Gods album and there's a faster, more chaotic version on our Live Raccoons Inside wild-berry-colored vinyl.

And our cover of "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun" has been making people smile since we debuted it on New Years Eve in Olympia, for Cap City Pride's NYE event! (Especially cause we include Cyndi's recent amendment to the lyrics: "Girls just wanna have FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS!!!!")

RV: Every band has a secret ingredient. What's yours — musically or spiritually? (If the answer is "trash," I accept that.)

TPGK: LOVE (and SNACKS!)

RV: AMPFest always brings out unexpected collaborations. If you could pull one Anacortes musician onstage for a surprise moment, who's your pick and what would you have them do?

TPGK: We'd LOVE to back up Karl Blau on a new-wave arrangement of "Fallin Rain"! We also love Clyde Petersen (does Guemes count??) and would attempt anything he asked of us.

RV: Last one: what should people bring to your AMPFest set on September 5th — emotionally, physically, expectationally, or metaphorically?

TPGK: Bring open hearts and be ready to dance! ■

Come share some raccoon magic with Zinnia and Selena and twenty other fantastic local bands and musicians at AMPFest on Saturday, September 5th.

Wait, what is The Globe?!

The building that was previously called Buxton's has been renamed The Globe. The Globe is also an organization working to support the arts and humanity in our community. They will host a myriad of grassroots arts experiences in partnership with other local arts organizations, including AMP and Fidalgo Maker's Guild.

Nothing about AMP is changing except that we now have a permanent home at The Globe! We will continue to offer our music programs, shows, and events, as we always have, and to grow our programming, now that we have a solid home.

Anacortes is lucky to have two amazing organizations under one roof. To celebrate this exciting change, join us for a grand opening show on September 19th with Fanny Alger, Sunbather Die, and Stereo Donkey!

A Special Kind of Work

AMP Youth Strings Camp Celebrates Its Fourth Year

by Katie Williams, photos by Barb Hunter

This August marked the fourth year of AMP Youth Strings Camp, a five-day camp where kids ages 8-13 learn violin, viola, or cello in a fun, fast-paced environment. Instructors from the Skagit Symphony teach the fundamentals — how to hold an instrument and bow, form notes, read music, follow a conductor, and play in an ensemble — building toward a final concert at week's end.

This year, for the first time, the camp welcomed both beginners in the Overture Track and returning students in the Intermediate Track, giving more kids a chance to grow as string players together.

Camp founder Barbara Baker envisioned a place where any child could pick up a stringed instrument, regardless of experience or whether they owned one. That vision lives on: all violins are provided by Suellen Eberhart, and the remaining instruments are available to rent, so no camper needs to already own one to participate.

Barbara passed away in 2024, and her husband created an endowment from the sale of her violin to help sustain the camp she started. Scholarships are made possible through the Barbara Stillwell Baker Strings For the Future fund, ensuring cost is never a barrier to joining.

The camp is now spearheaded by Barb Hunter and Suellen Eberhart, both members of the Skagit Symphony. Suellen teaches private violin lessons at The Globe, and starting this September, Barb will offer cello lessons there as well.

Teaching young children stringed instruments is a special kind of work — these aren't instruments that sound beautiful right out of the gate. The beauty comes only after real practice and patience, and watching kids push through that first stretch to find it is what makes this camp meaningful.

AMP Strings Camp will return every August, carrying forward the magic that comes from within. ■

Verse/Chorus/Verse

Anyone who has ever gotten lost in the liner notes knows that reading the lyrics of a song can give you a whole new perspective on a band or musician. Here we highlight the words of one song or poem with a unique Anacortes connection. This month we are thrilled to share original lyrics from one of our AMP Camp bands, Fate Decided.
