AMP BOARD MEMBER

October 2026:

The leaves are falling and we are entering what I like to call The Dark Ages, a time for hot coffee, hoodies, and the return of outdoor fires.

It's also a time to reflect on all the awesomeness that summer brought. Another amazing AMPFest in the books — the weather was perfect, the music was unrivaled, and the atmosphere was full of life! I can't think of a more fulfilling way to close out the summer, but oh wait, the grand opening of The Globe! Another knock it out of the park success. Fanny Alger, Sunbather Die, and the surf summer stylings of the one and only Stereo Donkey.

The Globe is humming and the reason behind that is the immense passion, love of community, hard work, and determination of my fellow board members.

As well none of this would be possible without the courage, passion and inspiration of Fletcher and Neil, owners of The Globe, by providing us a home and a future in this building. We are forever grateful and hope to continue this journey of growth, community, love, compassion, and understanding well into the future.

So this fall and winter, come and catch a show, celebrate the Yule Bizarre, get out of the cold, and let's make it through The Dark Ages together.

Meet the Band: We Were Heroes

by Andrew Velin, photo by Katie Williams

I got a chance to sit down with local legends and most intense post-punk rock band ever, We Were Heroes. After a ten-plus year hiatus from touring all over the states, and especially Washington, the gang found it was time to get back together. We Were Heroes is Ricky Vance on bass, Per Eide on drums, Jake Orton on guitar and vocals, and Josh Zimmerman on guitar and vocals. This band is legit on all levels. Incredible complex guitar arrangements, vocal harmonies, one of the hardest hitting drummers around, and a crazy jumping sleeveless bassist. You will never forget a WWH show!

ANDREW: What does it mean to you, to be making music and performing together again after taking a break for more than ten years?

PER: It means a lot. We have all been through some crap and I think ten years ago, we were ahead of our time. Now it's just about having fun with it.

JAKE: It's a blast. There's nothing quite like making a wall of sound with your boys, having a few soda pops and airing it out. Pure therapy, and lord have I missed it.

JOSH: It's honestly been one of the best things that we ever decided to do. Getting back into the band room and getting to play music with some of the best guys I know, and having a blast while doing it, has been amazing.

RICKY: Man it has been amazing. Getting to play with these dudes makes me a better musician. I was dabbling here and there with other bands and it really made me miss making the music that I truly love and with the guys who push the genre and me as well. You get into that jam room and it's like we never left.

ANDREW: What inspires your music nowadays compared to the past?

PER: To me I'm having more fun. Playing in different bands, with completely different styles allowed me to become a more well rounded drummer.

JAKE: We've grown up a lot since we started playing together. Writing has been a slow process, but I think we are more focused on doing it at our own pace and trying to find the hope in every situation.

JOSH: Being older and wiser gives you a much better outlook and understanding of life and you actually get to write music and lyrics that have meaning.

RICKY: A whole lot of life, lived between now and then. Perspectives and relationships evolve as we grow older and it's nice to have open dialogue about it all with these same fellas some ten plus years later.

ANDREW: Do you have any plans to record your new material?

PER: Yes. Hopefully sooner rather than later.

JAKE: We have a goal in mind and are excited to make an album, we don't have to record ourselves — although those burnt CD's slapped pretty hard. Not to mention Per and his daughter are collaborating on some pretty damn cool artwork for the album. Stay tuned!

JOSH: Heck yes we do!

RICKY: We've definitely got some new material to get out there. Hoping to record with the one and only, Matt Lesley. Maybe you've heard of him. We're getting close to being ready. It'll be so nice to do it at our own pace, with no pressure, no tour to go on. Just play shows when we want and jam on Wednesdays at our unit.

ANDREW: How do your new songs come about? What comes first and how do you decide who sings or writes the lyrics?

PER: Mainly Jake and I lay down a foundation then Josh and Ricky figure out their guitar parts. I try and figure shit out, but mainly they just tell me how bad I suck and to play better. As for lyrics, I'm not coordinated enough for that.

JAKE: Love a good AM practice on the weekend. It's when our creative juices flow the best. Often Per and I will work on some riffs and then introduce it to Josh and Ricky, so they can build upon it and really put the icing on the cake. Most of our lyrics are collaborative, which really means we throw things at the whiteboard until something sticks.

RICKY: I mainly just try to keep up. Being the least talented member in this band is hard work, man! I do love that our lyrics are a collaborative effort. It's really easy to scream your guts out, when you all believe in the message.

ANDREW: If you could open for any band in the world, who and where would it be?

PER: I would have liked to open for NOFX at Red Rocks.

JAKE: Thrice, at The Showbox Market in Seattle.

JOSH: I would say Creed at the Watertown tavern in Bellingham. JK. Probably A Wilhelm Scream at the Showbox.

RICKY: Piggy back on Jake here. Absolutely Thrice at The Market

ANDREW: What were you best known for (good or notorious) back in the dizay?

RICKY: Our tireless DIY work ethic. Whether booking our own tours or recording our own album, we had a good four to five year run where we were literally playing a show every weekend. Getting home when the sun came up and then heading into work. Who has the energy for that?!?! If we aren't home and in bed by 11:00 pm we turn into cranky old men, nowadays. We certainly had that drive in our younger years though. Fortunately we get to do things at our pace and really just have fun and get to share our love of heavy music with those who want to listen. ■

You can follow We Were Heroes on Facebook, reverbnation.com, and Spotify. You can catch them live at The Globe once every three or four months. Keep an eye out!

Piano Starts Here

A Beloved Piano Program Comes to AMP

For more than a decade, Piano Starts Here has brought pianists together at Seattle's Royal Room to explore the music of some incredible artists and composers. Now Piano Starts Here is making its way north.

The series began in 2012 and has been curated by Seattle musicians Wayne Horvitz and Alex Guilbert since 2014. The idea is to take familiar music and give musicians the freedom to interpret it in their own way. Over the years, the series has featured the music of Duke Ellington, Thelonious Monk, Alice Coltrane, Herbie Hancock, Joni Mitchell, Nick Drake and many more.

With the encouragement of Horvitz and Guilbert, AMP is bringing a quarterly version of the series to The Globe, starting Saturday, October 17 with the music of Elliott Smith.

Ben Starner, Kathy Moore, Tim Mechling, and Alex Guilbert will take on Smith's music using two grand pianos, which we are lucky enough to have sitting right next to each other, just waiting for something like this.

The evening will be intimate and simple. Candlelight, close seating, good food, and Elliott Smith songs, reimagined on two pianos. Dad's Diner will be serving small bites along with a specialty cocktail and mocktail created for the evening.

Each Piano Starts Here will focus on a different artist and bring together a new mix of musicians. We're excited to see what this series becomes in Anacortes, and very happy to give those two pianos some work to do.

This is just the beginning. Look for our next Piano Starts Here at the end of January, when we'll be taking on the music of Led Zeppelin. ■

New Releases

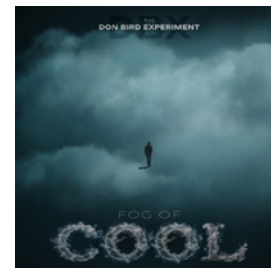

from The Don Bird Experiment:

Fog of Cool

Step into a Fog Of Cool, a musical work that explores discovery of new musical forms. Some old. Some new. Jazz, rock, rap, beatnik, chill, a progressive fusion of styles without boundaries. From the title track "Fog Of Cool," we step out into the "Cosmos," into an unknowable universe. Stop into "Frankie's Tiki Room" for a beverage and some local flavor, experience a new take on an old jazz standard, "Here's That Rainy Day," before continuing the journey, making the "Crossings" to other places and times, past galaxies and through nebulas enveloped in a Fog Of Cool that sustains our hope and imagination.

Released May 1, 2026

The Don Bird Experiment is Don Bird - Composer, Keyboards, Bass, Vocals, and Electronic Effects; Jake Yansen - Tenor and Soprano Saxophone, EWI; Andrew Cloutier - Drums; Chas Rowden - Co-Producer, Audio Engineer.

from Trash Panda Go Kart:

"Maybe Don't"

We've evolved! This is a version of a song from our first album, called "Maybe Don't", which somewhere over the last few years got Faster and Louder! Which makes it a good temperature check for where the band is at. "Maybe Don't" is an anti-capitalist screed and a protection spell (these things are mutually re-enforcing!) and also two excellent words to have in your pocket when someone gets all up in yer shit.

Released August 25, 2026

from Cory Vincent & the Electric Band:

"Who You Are"

A new single from one of the "must see" bands of the greater PNW area. Their blend of hard-hitting rock riffs, soulful vocals, and catchy songwriting is reminiscent of bands like Stone Temple Pilots, Soundgarden, Gov't Mule, and Rival Sons. Cory Vincent, Phil Carter, and Charlie Kregel have created a fresh, yet familiar sound that is made even more powerful by the quality of their songs. If you are someone that thinks music should be experienced and not just listened to, then Cory Vincent & The Electric Band is definitely for you.

Released September 4, 2026

Written and performed by Cory Vincent & The Electric Band. Recorded & Mixed by Eric Janko. Mastered by Rachel Field at Resonant Mastering. Recorded at Robert Lang Studios. Guitar & Vocals- Cory Vincent. Bass & 2nd Guitar- Charlie Kregel. Drums- Phil Carter.

AMPFest 2026

Another successful AMPFest, with our largest crowd yet! Pictured above is our traditional group photo of volunteers and musicians. Below are Shannon Patiño and We Were Heroes, two of the twenty local acts who rocked the stage. All photos by Jeff Albertson.

Wait, What is The Globe?!

The building that was previously called Buxton's has been renamed The Globe. The Globe is also an organization working to support the arts and humanity in our community. They will host a myriad of grassroots arts experiences in partnership with other local arts organizations, including AMP and Fidalgo Maker's Guild.

Nothing about AMP is changing except that we now have a permanent home at The Globe! We will continue to offer our music programs, shows, and events, as we always have, and to grow our programming, now that we have a solid home. Anacortes is lucky to have two amazing organizations under one roof.

The Globe - Anacortes A Sanctuary for the Arts and Humanity

The Globe is a collective built on friendship, love, and respect, with a commitment to exploring our creative potential and building stronger community in Anacortes and beyond. The Globe is a home to us all, no exceptions, in a space in space that is safe and welcoming. Can't wait for you to join our orbit!

Verse/Chorus/Verse

Anyone who has ever gotten lost in the liner notes knows that reading the lyrics of a song can give you a whole new perspective on a band or musician. Here we highlight the words of one song or poem with a unique Anacortes connection. This month we are thrilled to share original lyrics from Selena Kane and Zinnia Su of Trash Panda Go Kart, who recently rocked the stage at AMPFest.

Trash Panda Go Kart is a power-twee lesbian raccoon rock duo from the Island of Misfit Toys. Expect noisy yet dance-y songs about critters, bugs, flowers, and food with sing-songy melodies and loud guitars.

Diamonds

by Selena Kane and Zinnia Su

*Just cause you're not in the sky with diamonds
Doesn't mean we don't want to be
Out in the sky and our eyes are shining
Bright with the light of all we see*

*Don't have to stare up at the stars — oh no!
Don't have to wonder where you are — oh no!
Don't have to try to drive your car — oh no!
Don't have to put down your guitar — oh no!*

*Just cause you're not in the sky with diamonds
Doesn't mean we don't want to be
Out in the sky and our eyes are shining
Bright with the light of all we see*

*Don't have to stare into the sun — oh no!
Don't have to talk to anyone — oh no!
Don't have to ha-ave any fun — oh no!
I think your life has just begun!*

An Interview with October Cover Artist Oriyana Harper

by Laurie Racicot

The beautiful oil pastel drawing on our cover this month comes from Oriyana Harper, who was born and raised in Anacortes and now works at Watermark Books and takes violin lessons at AMP. An enthusiastic traveler, I spoke to her about her art while she was visiting Philadelphia.

Tell us a little bit about yourself and your art.

I was born in Anacortes and have always lived in the Pacific Northwest area. I've always loved art and the oil pastel drawing, like the crows, is one of my favorite materials to work with.

But other than art I do writing and I am currently learning to play the violin. I'm big fan of baking, hiking, and travel.

Fun! Where do you like to travel to? Are you in school, or did you graduate recently?

I'm not in school now. I graduated from Skagit Valley College a few years ago. I've considered continuing my education, I've always liked the more creative fields, but it's hard for me to narrow it down. I've traveled to Scotland and Mexico so far. Right now I'm in Philadelphia.

When you travel, what are you most excited about seeing?

Mostly the food and the culture. I love going to museums and seeing nature. When I was in Scotland, I saw the botanical gardens in Glasgow and they were beautiful, and Edinburgh was filled with old architecture. It doesn't really matter where you travel for a great experience.

So true. Do you create art when you travel? Or do you make art inspired by your travels?

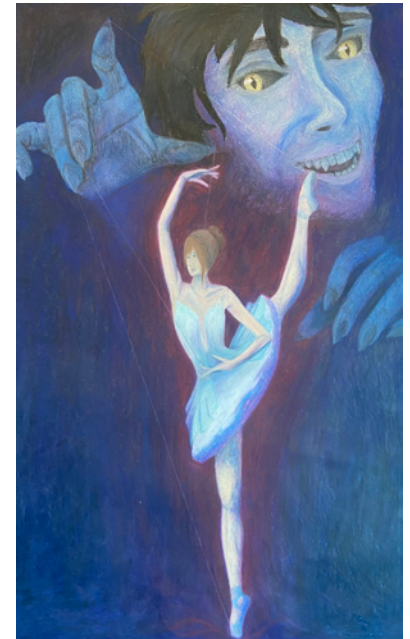

I like to write more when I travel and take photos. Then once I get home I do my art.

Do you listen to music while you make art?

Yes, I listen to classical, pop, and rock most often, or sometimes an audio book. When I get into my art I will often tune this out but I like to have background noise of some kind.

Who are some of your favorite artists to listen to while you work? Are there any Anacortes bands or musicians you like?

Right now I'm listening to The Score. Plus my family has always been into music. Of local bands, I tend to like Fanny Alger. ■
